
jugaaccess content bot not working properly

Posted by nzimas - 2008/04/20 16:29

We have created 2 users groups, Composer and Musician.

When a user is assigned to Composer, everything between {jugaaccess Composer} and {/jugaaccess} is displayed only to users in the group Composer.

Perfect.

However, when a user is assigned to Musician, everything between {jugaaccess Musician} and {/jugaaccess} is NOT displayed to users in the group Musician, as it should.

This looks like a bug.

Here's the markup we are using

```
{jugaaccess Composer}

Build an online catalogue of your compositions!

Submit your compositions to the Composition Database and make your works accessible to performers and music enthusiasts alike.

With each composition you can add both sound files and score (score excerpts) if you wish.

```
{/jugaaccess}
{jugaaccess Musician}
```

Upload music to the audio player. The player is located in your profile below the "about" field (if you have filled that in, otherwise it's below your picture). You manage your uploads from the player itself.

```
{/jugaaccess}

Is there any way to turn a debug mode on?

The environment is:

Joomla! 1.0.12 Stable (too customized; cannot be upgraded)

JUGA 1.0

Thanks,

Nuno.

Correction.
It does not seem to work on both user groups.

Nuno.

Ohhh, and i have sh404SEF turned on, in case it might matter.

Finally, the static content item handling the text is not mapped by JUGA.

In a nutshell, the bot is hiding contents from everyone.

I also used sh404sef on my test website. Nothing worked, I got a complete blank website. When I disabled sh404sef, all worked fine.

It appears that Juga and SH404Sef do not go well together...

I have managed to solve my issue with yet another irksome workaround :), using the JUGA module and a {mosloadposition} bot snippet to call it from a static content item.
The instance of mod_hiddenbyjuga that loads in position "juga" contains another position, for instance jugagroup1, where a module of type Custom is loaded in turn. That custom module contains the info i want to show only to the group specified in mod_hiddenbyjuga.
All it takes is to replicate instances of the JUGA module for different access groups, instruct to load a different position in each instance and assign a custom module to that position. Notice that each instance of mod_hiddenbyjuga has also to load in a different position for each JUGA group, otherwise the {mosloadposition} snippet won't work.

Down to earth.

JUGA Group: G1
position for mod_hiddenbyjuga to load in: jugag1 (in this module you have to specify the JUGA group, of course; G1 in this case).
position controlled by mod_hiddenbyjuga: jugag1load position for the costum module: jugag1load
bot snippet to make this work: {mosloadposition jugag1}

It's not an elegant solution, but it works flawlessly.

It would be slightly easier if JUGA coped well with the {modulebot} command.

Nuno.

I am also having the simplest of problems, I am unable to secure access to anything in a content page other than text. As soon as I create a link inside the tags then the tags display along with the content. The minute I remove the url then all is fine.

Is pretty simple and unless I am missing something then it must be a bug....can someone please confirm ??

{jugaaccess firstgroup}

This displays to members of the first group

url

{/jugaaccess}

Don't know why this took me so long to find...turns out the content bot fails (shows the actual Juga Tags) when you create a link and set it to open in a new window.

If you just create a hyper link on text on its own the bot works fine !

Let me know if you need more info but can recreate at will....

By the way, keep up the good work....reckon Juga is a brilliant effort !

More information:-

Can create a hotlink using a simple url such as www.news.com.au

but if I create a hotlink using something like this :-

http://domain.com/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=124&Itemid=157

Then the Juga bot fails....is it something to do with the ?? or the &&

Hello!

When was the last time you downloaded the jugaaccess plugin from us? I think that this bug has already been addressed.

Thanks!
